

SIGMA Gears up for Schools Christmas Holiday Projects...

The clocks have gone back, the weather's turned decidedly chillier and the last of the leaves are dropping from the trees. Yes, winter's definitely here and the Festive Season will soon be upon us!

Time, you may think, for a well-earned break? Not for us at Sigma, I'm afraid!

We're currently finalising details for several projects in local schools, where we will be undertaking a range of electrical projects (including lighting upgrades, fixed wiring periodic tests and energy efficiency audits), data network installations and CCTV system maintenance.

School holidays provide an ideal opportunity to undertake work that is impractical to do when the kids are about and Health and Safety concerns are at their maximum. Take a look at our Case Studies page to see how we helped Perse School for Girls in Cambridge relocate a laser link and keep their data flowing during the summer.

Work like this is booked well in advance, and the many local schools we work with have already begun discussing projects for Easter 2012. However, our reputation for responding at short notice usually means that we deal with a few "last minute" projects!

If you need installation, maintenance or remedial works carried out in your school (including any late panics!), give us a call now; we'll do our best to help.

So as you sit down to your Christmas pud, give a thought to our hardy engineers, out there in the cold, working hard to keep the wheels of education turning!

A New Website for 2011...

In preparation for 2011, SIGMA Networks has launched a new website that better reflects the full range of services we offer.

You'll also find a selection of Case Studies from recent projects, featuring customers as diverse as Dixons and Hampton Court palace!
